About the job :

You will join Mercator Ocean's Market and Service department and will act as a link between producers and stakeholders in the definition of new products and services defined and developed in research projects, in particular on the marine environment, biodiversity and on climate change and the impact on the ocean.

In this context, you will be more specifically in charge of :

- Participate in Horizon Europe projects
- Interfacing with producers and key stakeholders in the marine service
- Identify needs in terms of products and services
- Report and communicate on future products and services
- Organize meetings and workshops
- Represent Mercator Ocean in the presentation of results in the international context

In addition to these tasks, you will provide support on other subjects depending on the current situation of the department in relation to the improvement of our product and service offer and market intelligence activities for our current and future users.

Assets for success:

We are looking for candidates who are particularly rigorous, creative, curious, dynamic and reactive and who are willing to work in a team on ambitious and innovative scientific and technical projects.

You have a Master's degree or equivalent in environmental science or oceanography, and a minimum of 3 years' experience in participating in projects with an international dimension.

- You are familiar with the European context of operational oceanography, its services, and the thematic issues in the field
- You are familiar with marketing tools, surveys and polls
- You have good oral and written communication skills
- You are fluent in English (written/oral/spoken)
- Knowledge of a third European language would be appreciated

Who are we?

Mercator Ocean International has been developing operational oceanography activities for nearly 25 years, as part of its public interest mission to preserve the ocean.

Many scientific and societal challenges must be met to ensure a sustainable ocean, whether they concern the environment, biodiversity, climate change, the blue economy or education. To meet these challenges, Mercator Ocean designs, develops, operates and maintains state-of-the-art digital systems capable of describing, analysing and forecasting the state of the ocean in 3D, continuously and in real time. The scientific information is then translated to be accessible to all, whether they are public or commercial services, political decision makers, industrialists, associations, NGOs, teachers or citizens. Mercator Ocean International thus combines scientific excellence and social commitment on a daily basis.

As a non-profit company under multinational governance (ES, FR, GB, IT, NO), we work in a climate of trust with our ten shareholder partners, all key players in the development of European oceanography.
